Basic information

The subject area of noise regularly proves to be complex because each of us perceives noise differently. Noises that one person considers to be acceptable may be perceived as unacceptable by the next person. Whether you evaluate sounds as noise depends not only on your personal perception but also on what information you have about the source or cause of the sounds.

Please note that noises from children playing are part of everyday life and do not constitute noise pollution.

Department 10 - General Regulatory Affairs - only provides information and advice in this area.

Notes on night-time and so-called midday rest

The night (10 p.m. to 6 a.m.) is considered to be particularly sensitive to noise, which is why the noise level during this period should be lower than during the day. This also applies to Sundays and public holidays. On the other hand, the midday quiet period - which is often assumed to occur between 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. - does not exist under federal law. If your lease or house rules stipulate a midday rest period under private law, please contact your property management company or the person renting the property if you have any questions or have any violations.

Legal rest periods for garden equipment and machinery

Please note that certain devices and machines are subject to a legal rest period according to § 4 BremImSchG. You can find the details under "Further notes" in the "Procedures" tab."

The operating regulations do not apply in commercial and industrial areas.

Procedure

In the case of noise from the neighborhood, you should first speak directly with the person causing the noise, and if necessary also with other affected neighbors. If a compromise could not be reached through the conversation and if it is an unacceptable disturbance of your peace, it may be necessary to involve the competent authority.

To report acute noise pollution, please contact the public order service during the day:

- Phone +49 421 361 12340

or at night to the central police call center:

- Phone +49 421 3620

The public order service or the police will then check on site whether the noise is causing a significant nuisance to the general public or the neighborhood and, if necessary, take action.

The punishment of an administrative offense requires concrete information about the type and extent, the location, the time period (noise protocol) and the cause (polluter) of the noise.
