Basic information

According to the Bremen Soil Protection Act § 3 (1), concrete indications or circumstances that suggest the suspicion of a harmful soil change or contaminated site (for example, contamination detected during construction work) must be reported immediately to the competent authority. This obligation applies to everyone who is named as an "obligated party" in the Federal Soil Protection Act. The Soil Protection Department of the Senator for Climate Protection, Environment, Mobility, Urban Development and Housing or the Environmental Protection Office at the Municipality of Bremerhaven is at your disposal for the notification.

Requirements

If there are concrete indications or circumstances that suggest the suspicion of a harmful soil change or contaminated site, this must be reported by the party required to report.

In particular, the following must be reported:

- polluter of a harmful soil change or contaminated site
- Property owner
- Owner of the actual power over a plot of land

In the case of construction measures, foundation soil soundings, excavations or similar interventions in the subsoil, the obligation to notify is also incumbent on the building owner.

If a company is commissioned to investigate the subsoil during construction work, the site manager, surveyor or the responsible contractor is obliged to inform the client of any suspicion of a harmful soil change or contaminated site and to inform him of his obligation to notify the soil protection authority.

Procedure

The local jurisdiction of the responsible departments (see "Responsible department") must be strictly observed.
